Nation Says Its Last Farewell To William H. Taft

Funeral Services Reach A Climatic Peak At Noon

Body Buried In Arlington
National Cemetery
Today.

NATION IS BEREAVED

Thousands Take Part In Ceremony of America's Beloved Servant.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP)—Incoming services, become the finest in military, civil and religious administration, the nation said its last farewell to William Howard Taft today.

The funeral ceremony began as soon as the city was woke up, and reaching its peak about noon today as thousands entered into the rotunda of the capitol, and not ending until later after a military burial at Arlington.

The flag draped casket was placed in the capitol rotunda at 10 a. m. today, as long lines of those who loved him stood awaiting to pay their last tribute.

The street from Wyoming avenue to the capitol, long lines of persons stood with bowed heads to see the corps pass, and when it reached the White House, president and Mrs. Hoover stood bareheaded, with grave faces and bowed their heads to the casket. At the capitol, soldiers and marines took their stations, when the casket entered, and the crowd was then admitted to pay tribute to America's beloved public servant.

Damage Suit For $50,000 Started

Widow Sues Wealthy Garland City Planter for Death of Husband

TEXARKANA, March 11.—The $50,000 damage suit of Mrs. Mattie Simmons against Levi K. Person, planter and stock raiser for the death of her husband L. H. Simmons near Garland City last June, went to trial in the Arkansas state circuit court Monday.

A jury was obtained at noon. There are about 30 witnesses.

Simmons formerly was chief of police of Texarkana, Ark., but early last summer he became head of a squad of officers to enforce cattle dipping in Miller county. One day he rounded up some of Person's cattle, which is said to have enraged Person. The affair culminated in the shooting to death of Simmons. A Grand Jury failed to indict Person and the widow brought suit against Person for herself and five small children.

Girl Flyer Set New Air Record

18-Year-Old Pilot Attains Altitude of 32,000
Feet.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., March 11.—(AP)—Ellor Smith, 18-year-old girl pilot, Monday attained an apparent altitude of 32,000 feet in an attempt to set a new altitude record for women. The previous record set by the late Marvel Crosson, was 21,000 feet.

Miss Smith carried on her flight a sealed barograph, which will be sent to Washington to be read. She said one of her two altimeters showed 32,000 feet and the other 30,000.

At this altitude, she said, the supercharger regulating the flow of gas and oxygen to her motor apparently froze.

The physical effort of adjusting the motor made her dizzy, she said, then everything went black, and she fainted.

When she regained consciousness, she had dropped to 27,000 feet and the airplane was in a gentle glide.

Georgia Battleground To Get Deed To Itself

ATLANTA, March 11.—(AP)—Remains of a line of Confederate breastworks along the Chattahoochee river will be converted into a memorial by dedicating the property to itself.

The breastworks are on the estate of Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Atlanta club woman, who has planned a dedication ceremony to be conducted by the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The works are opposite remains of trenches dug on the other side of the river by Gen. Sherman's forces.

The property will not be the first in Georgia to be dedicated to itself. At Athens an historic oak has been the property of itself for years.

Poultry Carnival Is Proposed Here

Terrell Cornelius Makes Suggestion at Association Meeting Monday.

A Poultry Carnival similar to the Watermelon Festival which was established here for county truck growers, was proposed at a meeting of the Hempstead County Poultry association last night in Hope city Hall, by Terrell Cornelius.

Mr. Cornelius, who appeared on the program with Prof. Frederick K. Stoneburn, nationally known poultry authority, described the tremendous effect which the Watermelon Festival had exerted upon the melon and truck industry of the county; and said a Poultry Carnival would do as much for the poultry farmers.

Professor Stoneburn, who also appeared as the main speaker here on Poultry day—last Saturday—spoke on general problems confronting the poultryman. He spoke particularly of brooding, care of the flocks, markets and the great possibilities for intensive cultivation of poultry in the South.

Another speaker was J. R. Floyd, of Hot Springs, president of the State Poultry association, who is a frequent visitor here and who has helped the local association in its organization problems.

Several present poultrymen attended the meeting, which was enthusiastic despite an attendance limited by the severe storm that raked this section last night.

The next meeting of the county association will be held April 14.

Politics Talked at Mining Meet

Resolution of Sorrow Is Adopted, Sent To
Mrs. Taft.

LITTLE ROCK, March 11.—(AP)—Small politics and petty jealousy have been a hindrance to the industrial development in the southern states, Richard Redman, editor of the Manufacturers Record in Baltimore, said in a message read before the annual industrial conference of the southern division in the American Mining congress today.

Mr. Redman said "the southern states have been hindered by political disputes, not between parties but between one party."

Former Governor Chas. H. Brough introduced a resolution of sorrow in the passing of William Taft which was adopted and ordered sent to Mrs. Taft.

H. C. Couch, president of the L. & A. railroad and the Arkansas Power & Light company, and W. E. Dickerson, director of development of the Central Power & Light company, told of their relations and of industrial development.

Governor LEO Graves, of Alabama, led the discussion this afternoon in co-ordination with southern industrial development.

Theatre Damaged In Texarkana Fire

Blazing Film Set Fire To Gem Theatre With
$10,000 Loss.

TEXARKANA, March 11.—Blazing film Monday set fire to the projection room of the Gem theatre, 118 East Broad street, taking a toll of approximately $10,000 in moving picture machinery and damage to the building, and almost trapping Robert Donnelly, projectionist, in the small room.

The fire had gained much headway before the arrival of firemen, and the great mountains of thick smoke which rolled from the windows hampered the fire fighters in battling the blaze. It was soon extinguished, however, after four hose lines played on the blaze. The theatre was without patrons when the fire occurred.

Originating in the "re-wind" machine of the projection room, the entire room, filled with costly moving picture and Vitaphone machines, was a charred mass when the blaze was finally conquered. C. T. Thompson, manager of the theatre, said the loss would total at least $10,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

Attorney Says Walker Is Guilty

125 Witnesses Summoned
In Mystery Murder
Trial.

HARRISBURG, March 11.—(AP)—F. L. Gladish, district attorney, told the Poinsett county jury in a statement that he would prove Willis Walker, salesman of Wynne, was the slayer of Mrs. Lena Waugh Campbell Walsh.

Will Davis, chief defense counsel, hoped to prove that the body of a woman found slain near Marked Tree last December, was not that of Mrs. Walsh. "It has been proved that Mrs. Walsh was killed by a friend or a jealous lover," Mr. Gladish said.

"Walker was the last person seen with the woman and we will prove by the testimony of witnesses that Walker was the slayer of Mrs. Walsh."

One hundred and twenty-five witnesses were here to tell what they knew. The prosecution summoned seventy-five and the defense fifty. The Poinsett county court room was crowded at the trial resumed today. The jury was selected late yesterday.

Walker came into the court room shortly before the opening of court, went over to the wife of his brother, Mrs. C. S. Walker, kissed her, and said "don't worry, everything will be all right."

From all indications the trial is expected to last two or three days.

Ferry traffic across San Francisco bay increased 147,294 persons in 1929 for a total of 57,734,413.

Soybean Day To Be Held In Hope Monday, March 17

Farmers Will Save Money
By Purchasing Seed
At Car Door.

IS PROFITABLE CROP
Soybeans Are Especially
Adapted To Cotton
Farms.

According to County Agent Lynn Smith the Soy Bean Day which will be held in Hope next Monday, March 17 is a red letter day for Hempstead county. The fact that soy beans are coming more widely known has made it possible for the cooperative purchase of a car load of seed. Since these seed were purchased early last fall at a low price those who want soy beans this year can save from one to two dollars a bushel by purchasing the seed at the car door next Monday.

After Monday the price will be higher, and seed will be harder to find. It is expected that every man who aims to plant soybeans will come to Hope that day for his seed.

Following are a few facts relative to soybeans and their merit as a feed.

Profitable Crop
Soybeans are rapidly coming into favor as a profitable crop. Experiments of the agricultural colleges of various states have shown that they not only grow well on soil of average fertility, but also produce profitable yields.

Soybeans are adapted to a wide range of climatic conditions and fit well into a rotation for a diversified farming program. Besides yielding a profitable return to the grower, soybeans increase the fertility of the soil. Being a legume, the plant deposits free nitrogen from the air in the soil.

Goodwin Trial Enters 2nd Day

Armed Officers Stationed
Around Court House
To Keep Order

BOSTON, Texas, March 11.—(AP)—The state presented testimony in the trial of Dave Goodwin, 40, designed to show that the slaying of Lloyd Elliott, 22, resulted in the theft of a hog. A large force of armed officers were stationed around the court house to protect Goodwin, as the trial entered into the second day.

Buck Sanders, arrested with Goodwin and charged with a hog theft, was the first witness to take the stand today for the state. He told the court that Collie, Dave and Bud Goodwin and himself killed a hog the day before Elliott was slain. He said that he did not know who the hog belonged to, but the head and skin was hidden under some brush after it was killed.

Sanders said Elliott, owner of a hog camp appeared the next day, and disappeared after staying at the Goodwin home for a few minutes. "Shortly after he left I heard two shots," he testified.

Elliott's body was found later in Sulphur river, not far from the Goodwin home.

Henry Declares He Warned

Rumors of political dissension in Ward Two, ever since the five-year race for alderman from that ward in the city primary election February 25, resulted in a statement today from Dr. J. A. Henry, alderman who was defeated for re-election. Dr. Henry's statement, given today to The Star, is as follows:

"I did not solicit Mr. Whitehurst to run for alderman. I advised him not to, and I finally succeeded in persuading him to withdraw from the race after the injury was wrought. Mr. Erwin announced without my knowledge, and I had nothing to do with him being eliminated from the race."

"Three candidates for alderman on Front street, all members of the Christian church, was nothing out of an insult to the Ward. I favored representation in the south side of the Ward. I voted for and advised my friends to vote for representation in the south side."

"I discouraged single-shot voting. Several of my friends wanted a single-shot their votes for me and I objected. I understand that they obeyed one single-shot vote, which was for my opponent. I wanted a qualified Democratic vote. I objected to a Mr. Barlow Freeman who worked for me, voting for me, as he stated he did not have a poll tax receipt and he did not go to the polls."

The Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment Station is ready to receive a record crowd of visitors on Spring Visiting Day, this Friday, March 14, according to George W. Ware, assistant in charge.

The program will be in charge of 12 of the state's leading agricultural and home economic leaders, and many timely lectures and practical demonstrations are arranged for both men and women in the morning and the afternoon. Something of interest is planned for cotton farmers, fruit growers, dairymen, and the ladies who manage the home.

Visitors are requested to bring a light picnic lunch, but in addition to this, the Hope Chamber of Commerce under the supervision of W. Homer Figg, is going to serve free barbecue sandwiches and coffee to all visitors.

At this time of the year when the farm and home program is being formulated, many valuable ideas can be obtained by visiting the experiment station. Delegations from a large number of counties are expected to be present, and it is especially urged that Hempstead county people attend. Farm people, town people, and high school agricultural and home economic classes are invited.

The Value of Fidelity

THE trend of modern psychology seems to be toward acceptance of the theory that man is the product of circumstances. Learned men insist that we are moulded by our environment to such an extent that our old concept of free will must be altered; some of them, in fact, go so far as to declare that man is a simple machine, helpless in the hands of his surroundings.

That philosophy is not a pleasant one, although it does serve to excuse all manner of failure and self-indulgence. The man who has made a botch of his life, indeed, can hardly be blamed for clutching at the chance to free himself of all blame. Yet it hardly seems a worthy creed for a man who feels able to stand on his own feet.

Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, president of Brown University struck a healthy wallop at this theory the other day in an address at Worcester, Mass. He gave a new expression to the heartening old doctrine that a man who possesses enough determination and fidelity can hammer his way through in spite of outside influences; and one or two of the things he said are worth considering here.

"Our loyalty and fidelity, or our lack of them, determine in large measure the success or failure of other lives," said Dr. Barbour, "Every one of us carries with him an atmosphere which is debilitating or tonic. In steady persistence to the very end we are making only partial payment on a debt which we cannot discharge in full, a debt to home, to school, to the community, to our country and to God."

"It is entirely possible to possess and to cultivate something within us that is stronger than circumstance. He is a coward who whines about the obstacles in his way. Life should be like a river. There may be eddies here and there, but the volume of the river moves on toward the sea."

There is sound sense in that; a volume of the river moves on toward the sea."

There is sound sense in that; a welcome antidote to the doleful philosophy of some of our modern psychologists.

We Expected Too Much

IT IS beginning to be apparent that one of the reasons for our present disappointment with the London naval conference is that we expected the impossible.

When our delegation went to London Americans looked for the achievement of two goals—naval reduction and naval parity. But as the conference wears on, it appears that it is almost impossible for both of these ends to be had at the same time—as far as the immediate present is concerned. Evidently, we shall ultimately be forced to decide which of these two things we want.

Parity and naval reduction taken together would be a great step forward. But a little study ought to make clear the difficulties in the way.

By parity, of course, is meant a state of practical, theoretical equality between the American and British navies.

At present the two navies are practically equal in battleships, thanks to the Washington conference. But naval strategy and invention are tending more and more to make the cruiser the backbone of the fleet. And in cruisers America is far outclassed.

To get parity with the British, therefore, either we must build a great many more cruisers, or Britain must scrap a great many cruisers she now has. But Britain cannot do this, for she also has the fleets of Italy and France to consider. Her present strength is very probably close to the lowest figure she could possibly accept.

And there is the difficulty. We can get naval reduction by the simple expedient of voting it through Congress. But we shall not have parity. To get parity we shall have to build very extensively—and expensively. And that will hardly be naval reduction.

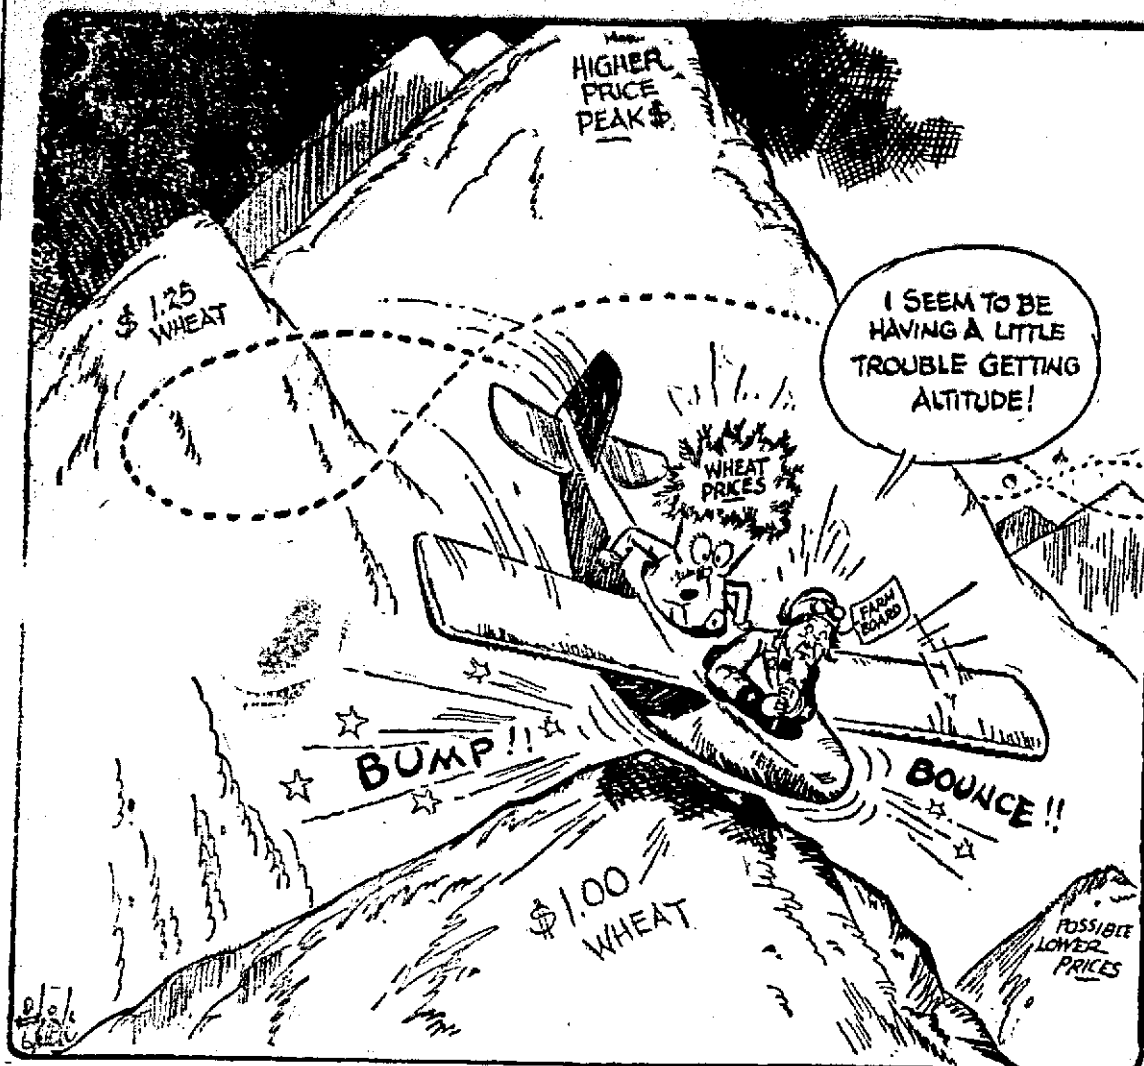

The problem is an infinitely tougher one than we realized last fall. We should not be too greatly disappointed if the conference produces a less spectacular result than we expected a few months ago.

Dangerous

ONCE again the bill providing for compulsory registration of all aliens is being agitated. The matter will be brought to Congress' attention soon with proposals that aliens be compelled to register once each year and that they be compelled to carry their registration cards with them, and produce them on the request of any policeman.

It is hard to see just why this bill is necessary, but it is not at all hard to see how such a law might be abused. If the present unemployment situation, which plays directly into the hands of the Communists, should produce another "red hunt" along the lines of 1919 and 1920, would not such a law be an oppressive instrument in the hands of police intent on making life miserable for the foreign-born?

You'll Never Know What Thrills Are Till You Take Up Gliding!

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—President Herbert Hoover's first year in the White House having ended, it now becomes in order to look ahead and hazard a few guesses as to what his second year will be like.

Only the briefest survey is necessary to convince one that the president faces many grave problems in his second year.

Troublesome developments in politics, legislation, foreign affairs, business conditions and certain domestic issues seem certain to try the president's powers to the utmost during the next 12 months.

An outstanding example is furnished in the field of foreign relations by the London naval conference.

Reduction Not Likely

When this conference was announced, on the heels of President Hoover's call for international naval armament reduction, peace advocates cheered loudly.

Now, however, reports from London indicate that chances for real naval armament reduction are remote. Persistent reports say that the American delegation has acted without advice from Hoover, making such suggestions as the one for a new $50,000,000 battleship. At any rate, if the conference fails to bring about reduction of the administration will be robbed of its outstanding chance for prestige.

Then there is the political field. Congressional elections are coming, and if the election of a wet Democrat in Calvin Coolidge's strong Republican stronghold in Massachusetts is any omen there is mighty little encouragement in it for President Hoover. Nor is there any other light on the horizon.

In addition, Chairman Claudius Huston of the Republican National Committee finds his resignation being predicted quite frequently by amateur critics. First he was made defendant in a mysterious $50,000 suit for repayment of a loan, and then he was disclosed as a former lobbyist for one of the big corporations in connection with Muscle Shoals. None of this, of course, makes Mr. Hoover's political outlook any rosier.

And, incidentally, you might notice that Mr. Coolidge's cross-country tour is arousing considerable political gossip of an unsettling nature.

The legislative situation is also cloudy. The rambunctiousness of the Senate progressives, coming as it does in an election year, indicates that they believe their people back home support their views. The tariff bill is still pending, with Hoover's position still undisclosed. Old Guard Republicans, who never did love Hoover, were further riled when he failed to consult them on the Hughes appointment. Hoover, the Old Guard and the progressives, in fact, make a rather remarkable political triangle.

Aside from the tariff, the leading domestic issues would seem to be power, prohibition and farm relief.

As New York Communists Fled Police Clubs

"Scatter, Reds!" . . . Police clubs swung. Hoarse orders were barked. "Mounties" rode rough-shod into the smiling throng. And, as pictured above, the feet of cowed Communists flew across the pavements of famous Union Square, in New York, when a peace time army of 1400 policemen broke up the huge unemployment demonstration on "Re Thursday." ## A Simple, Yet Picturesque Colonial Cottage

Second Floor

House No. 142

THIS design splendidly illustrates that charm and picturesqueness can be attained in a house with the simplest motives. One is instantly struck by the coziness and hominess of this house. Its appeal is so direct that one doesn't have to stop to analyze it.

The big chimney, the perfectly-balanced gable end, the pleasing roof slope with its dormers, the latticed entrance doorway and well-proportioned windows are all so skillfully put together that they blend into one harmonious mass. And therein lies the fine art of architectural designing.

Special, outstanding features in a house may strike one's fancy for the moment, but it is the house in which all the features combine to produce an effect that holds an admiration over a period of years; and most of us who build are likely to live in a house for a good many years.

The simple American or Running Bond would be most appropriate for this house. Any range

Designed for American Free Brick Association of brick—red, buff or grey would be suitable.

The house would look well on either an inside or a corner lot, and may be placed close to the street or well back on the lot. It is 31 feet 8 inches across the front and 28 feet deep. Don't build it on less than 50 foot frontage and give it more frontage if you possibly can. It is such a homely house that it almost cries for an old-fashioned garden.

There is more room in the house than one would think. A study of the floor plans will show how spacious and complete it is for a small house. The living room is of fine proportions, of good size and has windows on three sides. Note the arrangement of kitchen and dining room and the abundance of storage space in the pantry, closets and rear entry.

The second floor is as complete and convenient as the first. The bedrooms are all well lighted and have good cross ventilation. From every point of view this is an exceptionally fine six-room house.

"Sally" Blooms In Radiance of Color

"Sally," Marilyn Miller's first motion picture, which opens at the Sauter Theatre today, is made entirely in Technicolor showing the natural colors of costumes, settings and other spectacular effects.

The picture has been adapted from Miss Miller's greatest stage success, and is an all-dialogue production with singing and dancing on the most lavish scale ever attempted on the screen. An all-star supporting cast is seen with Miss Miller. Pert Kelton, who played in Ziegfeld's "Rio airplane through the Grand Canyon of Arizona. This is tremendously thrilling, and its equal for daring and for beautiful photography has probably never been seen in any other picture.

Next come Mix's leap from the 'plane into the Colorado river; his leap of eleven feet for one precipice to another where failure would have meant his death thousands of feet below, his heart-stirring horse-back riding up a steep canyon trail and around the edge of the canyon; and his slide of 125 feet down a sheer cliff on a rope.

the nodules on the roots. This factor of building up worn soils, as well as loosening the soil, makes a strong appeal to farmers who have long been seeking a crop that will fit into the rotation and yield good returns.

The following statements from representatives of the Extension Service of the University of Arkansas, College of Agriculture, and the Arkansas Agricultural Experiment Station, give concise information on production of soybeans and the place of the crop in the Arkansas farm program.

Soybeans In Arkansas

Arkansas falls far short of producing the amount of feed required for the livestock now in the state. In 1929 the feed shortage, due to drought, was greater than usual. Corn suffered most from the drought.

Soybeans should be substituted for corn on land that is known to be poorly adapted to corn. Soybeans have a wide soil adaptation and will thrive on any land adapted to either cotton or corn and will stand drought better than corn.

Soybeans are especially well adapted to cotton farms. The crop will thrive on soils which are not adapted to growing alfalfa, and is valuable for hay, pasture, seed, or green manuring purposes.

As a hay crop soybeans fill a great need on cotton farms where alfalfa is not adapted, and where too much dependence is placed on grass hay, which is inferior to soybean hay. As supplementary pasture crop it fills a need when the permanent pasture is short in summer or fall.

The crop is also adapted to planting with corn, in which case it may be pastured and, whether pastured or not, will enrich the land. At the cotton branch experiment station cotton following corn with soybeans made 50 per cent more yield than cotton following corn without a legume crop.

HOOKS & SLIDES

by William Braucher

The Land of Broken Hearts
When Lester left, Winter's kind words had not yet abated
the local boy took the train for the Southland, but spring's warm breezes were in his heart.
His big chance had come. He was going to the big leagues. His friends were at the depot to wish him well. Jim and Tony and Paul, the city editor of the paper, came down to shake his hand. He would have to make good now.
After all, this hullabaloo. He'd just as soon have gone quietly, without the glare and fuss—but they let them have their fun.
He got on the train at Kansas City that carried the rest of the players. They shook his hand and kidded him along. Lester was tall; they called him "Big Boy" during the rest of the trip, and he liked it. Lester made friends easily; he hadn't thought his league would be such good fellows. There wasn't a high hat in the whole crowd.

Pieces in the Paper

THE Chicago and New York papers carried little items about him. One of the accounts said:
"Lester Henry Wilson got board the players' special at Kansas City. He was wearing a hat that inclined toward the large-rimmed variety of the border-heros. In his pitching hand, the right one, he carried a bag that appeared rather small for a lengthy journey (that was Aunt Emma's bag that he had borrowed), but when he learned that some of the boys thought that he was traveling light, he mentioned that he wasn't on a pleasure trip and that 'anyway, they have one-day laundries near the training camp, don't they?'" Lester appears to be somewhat a diamond in the rough, but he has a competitive heart, and that's about 80 per cent of a pitcher's success. He is the young fellow Manager McCourtney liked last year when he pitched an exhibition game against the Wolves out in Keokuk. He seems to be a cool fellow, with a world of the old courage.

Lester was shown the clipping by several of the fellows, and he ate it right up. Cool? Competitive? He would show them!
They hadn't said half enough.
Down at the Springs he toiled, run around the park, pitched, did everything that was asked of him —and more. He studied the other fellows' styles, worked on curve balls, flung them to batters in practice day after day. This was his big chance and he was fighting for the job.

Five days in camp and he felt
a twinge in his right shoulder.
Lefty McGorty, the trainer, rubbed and rubbed, but it would not come out. "Try the steam," said Lefty. "Maybe that will cook it out." He tried the steam; it didn't work. The twinge was there, and it got worse. Maybe he had flung too hard. He would ease up for a couple of days. He tried taking it easy. That didn't work, either. It hurt him to throw.

He Prefers Decatur

THE Decatur wasn't long in coming.
Mccourtney called him over one day and said, "Sorry, kid, but you have been sent back to Decatur. The secretary will fix you up with transportation. If you want to go back home first for a while, and give the shoulder
a rest, it will be O. K."
"Go back home first for a little rest . . . It will be O. K.?" After that band, and Jim and Tony and Paul, the city editor, had come down to see him off? Nope. He would go on to Decatur and wait until they were ready for him.
That would be the better way for Lester.

Fund Is Started To Aid Sparklers

Friends of Dashing Team Hope to See It Play at Tournament.

ARKADELPHIA, March 11.—The financial plight of the Sparkman Sparklers appealed to the people of Arkadelphia who have started the fund off by popular contributions. Donations ranging from 50 cents to $25
have been sent in to the Siftings Herald. One donation came from the Arkadelphia Chamber of Commerce, another from a man more than 80 years old, who never saw but one basket ball game.

The Sparklers are due to go to Wichita, Kan., late this month to enter the national girls basket ball tournament, but their season is approaching an end with no money in the treasury. There are no funds for transportation and hotel bills while in Wichita. Last year the Sparklers came out ahead on finances, but the bringing of several strong opponents into this state to play the girls, who have never been defeated by an Arkansas team, turned out badly from a financial standpoint. The management derived nothing more than enough for expenses, except in one or two instances.

It is the belief of many that the Sparkman girls have won the right to represent the state at the national tournament. They have received more publicity throughout the United States perhaps than any other athletic organization the state ever turned out.

Friends of the team believe that several cities in the state will take the initiative in raising funds for the Sparklers. It will require no less than $1,000 to finance the trip, Manager
North said.

Four Fruit Kings

Four kings are pretty hard to beat in a poker game—and these four kings are equally hard to beat in the fruit game. They recently conceived the idea of taking a vacation together in the Spanish-American republics. Shown here just before they left from Los Angeles, they are, left to right: V. T. McCurdy, pear king;
P. L. Monnet, canning king; Henry Stelling, cherry king, and John

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. March 11.—

battles is in prospect when the best of America's mermaids splash away in the Roman pools here March 13 to 16

U. championships.

Two national championship relay

a formidable entry from the Pacific Coast Swimming association, led by Josephine McKim, national champion and record holder in the 440 and 880

MOTHER GAVE BLACK-DRAUGHT

"Fine for Constipation and Sick Headache," Writes
Alabama Lady.

Huntsville, Ala.—"My mother gave Black-Draught to all the children in our home," writes Mrs.
W. T. Taylor, of Sixth Avenue,
this city. "It was the only medicine I knew of when I grew up.
We took it in the winter (as a laxative) for colds, and whenever we ate anything that disagreed with us she gave us a course of Black-Draught."

"After I grew up, I took Black-Draught for constipation and sick headache. It surely is fine for that.
"I make a tea out of Black-Draught and take it at night, when needed. It is the best laxative I know anything about, and the only one I ever use. After a lifetime of experience I can heartily recommend it."

"The medicine which this Alabama lady recommends is the same Theford's Black-Draught which so many others have told of having used, all their lives, because of the good results obtained from taking it."

Get the genuine—Theford's.

22 Men Report In Traveler's Camp

President Allen and Man- ager Steele Are Pleased With Showing.

HOT SPRINGS, March 11.—Twenty-two men in camp, each with a signed contract and none with a sore arm or any physical defect, was the joint report made last night in the lobby of the Kingsway hotel by President Bob Allen and Manager
Jack Steele.

The prexy and his pilot had reason to be cheerful for it was indicated their troubles, so far as the players they wanted, had been solved, and there is nothing to do but make selections from those here and the few who are expected today. Both the prexy and Manager Steele also indicated they will have much material to go over. There was another reason for the spirit of optimism manifest. The squad had a busy day at the park. The catching department, which has given Steele some concern, appears to be solved. Not only has Klinger shown that he is meeting the ball squarely on the seam in batting practice, but the manner in which he is shooting the "apple" down to second and around the bases in general is a treat. It is doubtful if there will be a catcher in the Southern Association who will get the ball away with more speed than Klinger, judging by what he showed yesterday.

Klinger, however, did not monopolize all the spotlight in that department. His colleague, Candler, got into the picture for the first time. He is a big, husky chap, an ideal type for catcher and, like Klinger, has a powerful arm.

Coach Never Played, Yet His Team Takes 'Em All

MAPLE RAPIDS, March 11.—(P)— Coached by a man who never played basketball, the high school team of this village of 50 people has piled up a five-year record of 67 victories in 75 regularly scheduled games.

It has won three district championships, three regional titles, and has gone to the state finals in three of five years.

Coach M. J. Paine, a graduate of Michigan State college, never played basketball in high school or college.
His team plays in class D competi-

Babe Ruth Must Pay $10,246 Tax On His New Salary

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(P)—
Though Babe Ruth will receive a salary of $80,000 this year and next, he actually will receive less than $70,000, because $10,246 must go to pay the annual income tax.

A person with a salary of $80,000, who, like Ruth, is married and has two dependents, is allowed an exemption of $4,300. Subtracting the amount exempted, the tax on the remainder under the 1929 tax reduction schedule would amount to $10,668, but the taxpayer would be allowed a credit of $442 for earned income, making his tax total 10246.

FOR early spring, the morning ensemble of soft wool, pictured at right, is an enviable choice. One in beige chine from Jean Patou has the new unpressed pleats for fullness, has an unusual cut to its skirt, and uses white silk pique for lingerie touches.

THE coat of the Patou morning ensemble, shown at left, is the correct three-quarters length for spring. A little felt chapeau and suede oxford and a round suede purse, in the same rich brown, are

BEGIN HERE TODAY

THE CRIME: Doris Matthews, lady's maid, is murdered Friday night in a summerhouse by blow with heavy perfume flask; body, rock-weighted, dumped into lake on estate of millionaire Berkeley.

DETECTIVES: Ronnie Dundee, guest of Berkeley, and discoverer of body at sunrise swimming party; Captain Strawn of Hamilton side squad.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XIII

GEORGE BERKELEY broke the silence. "Naturally we're glad to have Mr. Dundee with us, though I am afraid his visit—" he began uncertainly.

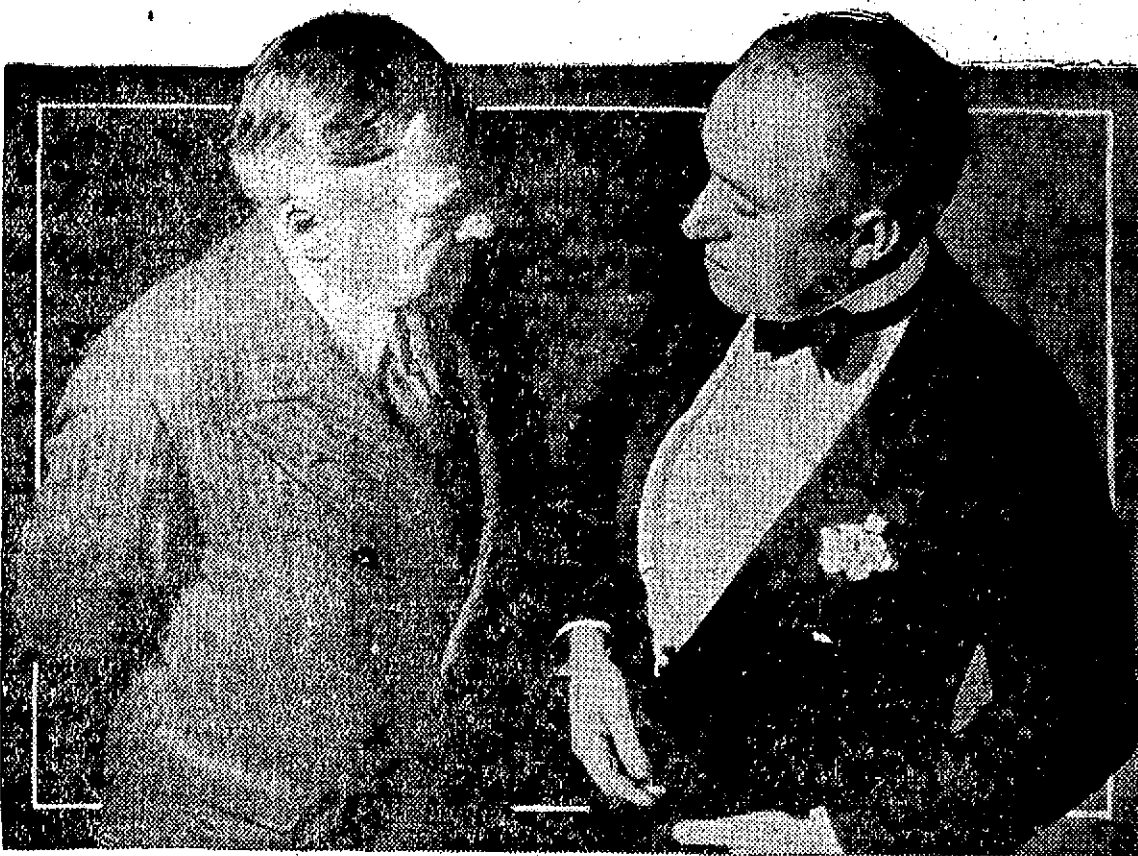

"I'll explain, Mr. Berkeley," Captain Strawn assured him. "Mr. Dundee is what I'd call a mighty clever amateur detective, though being what you might call an old-fashioned regular I don't usually have much use for amateurs. Criminologist, I believe, is the word he uses. He's studied Scotland Yard methods and just this summer he did me a good turn on the biggest murder case we've ever had in Hamilton. Getting material for books on the subject—that's his game. He writes shorthand, too, and he's going to take down what you folks have to tell me."

"A detective! Are you really a detective, Ronnie Dundee?" Gigi cried, springing from Mrs. Lambert's embrace and running swiftly across the room to seize Dundee's hands and swing them with frantic joy. "Oh, I'm glad! You won't let the police bully us and be hard on us, will you? Of course, Captain Strawn looks like a gruff old darling bear—" and she whirled to pat the chief's cheek impudently. "Wow! You do need a shave!"

"I know it," Captain Strawn acknowledged ruefully. "Dundee hustled me out of bed and I didn't take time. But this is a serious business, young woman!" he interrupted himself sternly, though he could not keep his eyes from twinkling at her. "Now, is everybody here? Are you Mrs. Berkeley, ma'am?" he asked politely, turning to Mrs. Lambert.

Color swept over Mrs. Lambert's still beautiful but tired face. "I am Mrs. Lambert, Mrs. Berkeley's secretary," she said, her voice low but very clear.

"My wife is still sleeping. I believe," George Berkeley explained stiffly. "At any rate, she has not come down yet, and no one has been to her room to tell her that—anything is—wrong. It is—or was—her maid's duty to awaken her at half-past eight, draw her bath and serve her breakfast in her room. Since—Doris—"

"Sorry you've got to run up against the police again, Mr. Crosby." Strawn went on wickedly.

"I see," Strawn interrupted. "We'll go up and speak to her presently, but first, so we shan't be wasting time, I'd like for anybody that's got anything to tell me to speak up."

NO one moved or spoke for a long minute, then Gigi, who had again returned to the shelter of Mrs. Lambert's arms, laughed hysterically.

"What! No confessions?" she cried, then burst into tears and hid her face against Mrs. Lambert's breast as her father pronounced her name sternly.

"Do you know where your son is, Mr. Berkeley?" Strawn asked.

"Dick?" The millionaire showed blank surprise. "In his room, I suppose. It is still rather early for him—"

"He's not in his room and his bed hasn't been slept in," Strawn cut in grimly, and as ruthlessly ignored the flurry of exclamations and half-uttered questions which followed upon his revelation. "Now, Mr. Berkeley, I'll ask you to show Mr. Dundee and me to your wife's room."

George Berkeley started to protest angrily, then checked himself abruptly, but his darkly handsome face was flushed and his nostrils flaring as he answered: "Certainly. This way—"

"Just a minute. You folks stay right here. I don't know your names, but—"

"My daughters, Florinda and Georgina; our guest, Mr. Seymour Crosby," Berkeley obliged, his lips tightening over the last name.

"Oh! So this is Mr. Seymour Crosby?" Strawn pretended vast surprise. "I've read a lot about you, Mr. Crosby—always thought I'd like to meet you," he added, his eyes narrowing significantly.

Seymour Crosby flushed, but bowed without replying.

"Sorry you've got to run up against the police again, Mr. Crosby," Strawn went on wickedly, "but I hope you'll come out of this case with as clean a bill of health as you did out of the other one, sir."

Again Gigi sat up with a jerk and her round topaz eyes flashed excitedly, startled questions; but Strawn wheeled, grinning, to follow the master of the house from the room, Dundee hurrying after him.

MRS. BERKELEY'S rooms occupied the northeast corner of the house, her bedroom on the front and sitting into the tower which rose one story higher than the rest of the mansion. Between the enormous bedroom and the smaller sitting room, facing east, were the foyer and a large bathroom, all connecting.

The detectives did not note all these details in those first moments, however. They were listening for an answer to George Berkeley's knock upon the bedroom door.

"She must be sleeping pretty sound," Strawn whispered gustily, as Berkeley raised his knuckles to knock again.

But at that moment a querulous voice called out: "Why are you knocking, Doris? For heaven's sake come on in! I can't bear any hammering this morning!"

"Strawn and Dundee exchanged glances, as the millionaire called soothingly: 'It's George, Abbie. May I come in?'"

"Have you thought up a lot of new arguments, George Berkeley?" Well, so have I! But come on in. If you must! I'm still in bed and I've still got an awful headache—"

Rather hastily, as if to cut her short, Berkeley opened the door and the two detectives, the younger with a word of apology, followed him into the enormous and overpoweringly luxurious bedroom of the mistress of Hillcrest.

While Mrs. Berkeley squealed and protested and questioned futilely, Captain Strawn strode to the darkened windows which filled the semi-circle formed by the tower of which the room was a part, and jerked up the shades.

Painfully embarrassed, Dundee baited just inside the door while George Berkeley, in a low voice, explained that Strawn was a captain of detectives and that their guest, as an amateur criminologist, was there as his assistant.

"But what in the world are detectives doing here, George?" Mrs. Berkeley shrieked, drawing an orchid satin comforter up to her chin. "Has the house been robbed? Tell me—"

"I'll tell you, Mrs. Berkeley," Captain Strawn interrupted, marching to the bed and looking down grimly upon its disheveled, haggard occupant. "But first I'd like to ask you when you last saw Doris Matthews, your maid."

"Doris?" Mrs. Berkeley squealed. "So that impertinent little snip is the thief, is she? I never trusted that girl, with her high and mighty airs and—"

"Abbie, my dear," her husband began sadly, "I am afraid this is all much more serious than stolen perfume and jewels. Please try to control yourself—"

"If you'll pardon me, Mr. Berkeley, I'll do the explaining," Captain Strawn cut in sharply. "Mrs. Berkeley, it is my unpleasant duty to inform you that Doris Matthews has been murdered!"

"Murdered!" the woman gasped. Then she whispered the word, her lips—like red crepe paper—quivering over the word. "Murdered!" Then she lay back on her pillows, her disheveled, haggard head rolling, the wrinkled lids falling over her faded, hard eyes.

"And I must also inform you, Mrs. Berkeley," Captain Strawn went on implacably, unmercifully, "that your son, Dick, is missing. He did not sleep in his room last night, and we know that he made an appointment to meet the girl after the family was in bed."

As he spoke, the woman began to lift herself in bed, her ravaged face turned toward the detective.

"You think—Dick? Oh, you're a fool, a fool! My boy's not a murderer! He's dead, too! He killed them both, like he said he would! Oh, my God, my God!"

"He?" Strawn echoed, as George Berkeley forcibly held his wife in bed.

Menu For the Family

BY SISTER MARY, NEA Service Writer

WHEN there are no small children in a family, dishes made with nuts offer variety for meatless meals. Nut croquettes, loaves and patties are rich in protein and make excellent meat substitutes. Peanuts, almonds and butter-nuts are richer in protein than any other variety of nuts commonly used. The pine nut, more generally used in the west and southwest than in the eastern states, is richest of all nuts in protein. These nuts contain more protein than an equal weight of meat.

English walnuts, Brazil nuts, pecans, almonds and hickory nuts are particularly high in fat but contain a worth-while amount of protein.

However, it is the peanut, the cheapest of all nuts, which is the best source of protein. Peanut butter of course is also rich in protein, so that connections containing peanut butter have their protein calories increased. Peanut butter soup, peanut butter salad dressing, peanut butter sandwiches and salads with peanut butter can be counted on to add protein to menus.

Meatless Meat Loaf

Three cups stale bread crumbs, 1-2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup finely chopped nut meats, 1 cup minced celery, 1 apple, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon white pepper, 1 tablespoon capers.

Grate apple. Scald milk. Dry crumbs in cool oven until crisp. Add hot milk to crumbs, using as much milk as crumbs will absorb. Let stand a few minutes and add butter. Stir until butter is melted and add well beaten eggs and remaining ingredients. Mix thoroughly and turn into an oiled loaf pan. Bake in a slow oven for an hour or until firm to the touch. Serve with tomato sauce to which grated cheese has been added.

masticated, are eaten in large quantities by themselves, or are added to a meal already rich in calories. Nuts eaten with a meal either as a relish or mixed with the food must be considered as any highly concentrated protein and fat. They add much nutritive value to the meal and should not cause digestive troubles with an ordinarily healthy person.

Serve plenty of bulky vegetables with a nut loaf. Spinach, cabbage, lettuce, carrots or celery combine well with a nut dish and can be used raw or cooked.
